

Key Insights

1. Fruits & Vegetables is the highest-selling product category, making it the primary contributor to overall sales.
2. Snack Foods and Household products also contribute significantly to total revenue, indicating consistent customer demand.
3. Low Fat products contribute approximately 65% of total sales, while Regular products contribute around 35%, showing a strong customer preference for healthier grocery options.
4. Tier 3 outlets generate the highest overall sales among all outlet locations, suggesting strong market demand in Tier 3 cities.
5. Medium-sized outlets contribute the highest sales compared to Small and High-sized outlets.
6. Supermarket Type 1 generates the highest overall revenue and accounts for the largest number of items sold.
7. Grocery Stores achieve the highest average customer rating (3.99), indicating better customer satisfaction.
8. Supermarket Type 3 records the lowest sales among outlet types, highlighting an opportunity for operational improvement.
9. The majority of BlinkIT's revenue comes from a limited number of high-performing product categories.
10. The sales distribution across outlet establishment years indicates that several mature outlets continue to contribute significantly to overall revenue.